Chardonnay || White Burgundy

Cote de Beaune

The villages around the city of Beaune produce the Burgundy's top whites. Among them, Puligny-Montrachet, Chassagne-Montrachet, and Meursault are the most famous. A handful of perfectly situated slopes within these villages are classified as Grand Crus which are the most ageworthy Chardonnays on Earth.

Italian Whites

Italian white wines offer a diverse range, from crisp and dry to sweet and sparkling, with various flavor profiles. Dry whites like Pinot Grigio, Gavi, and Verdicchio are known for their refreshing, fruity, and floral notes. Sweet options, such as Moscato d'Asti are luscious and aromatic, perfect for dessert or cheese pairings.

Bordeaux

The Left Bank of Bordeaux, primarily known for the Médoc and Graves regions, is renowned for its Cabernet Sauvignon-dominant red blends. These wines are characterized by their structured, powerful, and ageworthy profiles, often exhibiting flavors of cassis, cedar, and dark cherry. The Left Bank's gravelly soil and maritime climate contribute to the unique qualities of these wines.

Right Bank

Right Bank Bordeaux wines are known for being Merlot-dominant, often with Cabernet Franc, and are characterized by softer tannins and approachable, fruit-forward flavors like ripe red fruits, plum, and cherry, sometimes with herbal or floral notes. They are generally considered more supple and balanced than their Left Bank counterparts, with a silky texture and a tendency to be enjoyed earlier in their life.

Red Burgundy

Burgundy red wine, primarily made from Pinot Noir grapes, is known for its delicate flavors, bright acidity, and smooth tannins, offering a balanced and often elegant experience. It typically displays notes of red and black fruits, such as raspberry, cherry, and blackberry, sometimes with earthy or spicy undertones. Aged Burgundy wines can develop gamey or leather-like nuances.

California Cabernet Sauvignon

NAPA || VALLEY

Famous for producing some of the world's most sought-after and expensive Cabernet Sauvignons, characterized by richness, complexity, and long aging potential. Wines from the valley floor are often described as lush with notes of ripe plum and blackberry, while hillside wines are bolder with heightened minerality and firm tannins.

NAPA || BECKSTOFFER VINEYARDS

Wines made from the Beckstoffer Vineyards' grapes are renowned for their intense fruit character, complex structure, and exceptional aging potential, with specific characteristics varying by vineyard site and grape varietal. While Cabernet Sauvignon from sites like Georges III or To Kalon often displays notes of black fruit, graphite, and spice, Las Piedras expresses a stony, spicy blueberry profile.

Italy

Italian red wines offer incredible diversity, known for rich colors, aromatic complexity of red fruits, floral notes, and earthy undertones, and structured profiles with high acidity and tannins, ideal for food pairing. Key indigenous grapes like Sangiovese (Chianti) and Nebbiolo (Barolo, Barbaresco) form the backbone of many classic wines, while other varieties such as Barbera, Corvina, Montepulciano, and Nero d'Avola produce distinct regional styles. Wines like Amarone are renowned for their unique method of drying grapes, resulting in full-bodied wines with intense flavors.

Spain

Spanish red wines, known for their depth and regional diversity, are primarily crafted from iconic grapes like Tempranillo and Garnacha (Grenache). Tempranillo is thick-skinned, providing rich, spicy, and savory notes with prominent tannins, especially in esteemed regions like Rioja and Ribera del Duero. Garnacha, on the other hand, yields juicy, low-tannin reds with aromatic red fruit flavors, famously showcased in the intense wines of Priorat.
